Giving Heritage a Modern Makeover

CENTRAL

II

A beacon of modern living set in one of Shanghai's most charming, historical neighbourhoods, Central Residences II is the only home you'll want in the city.

Consolidating 12 years of excellence, and looking ahead at the next decade and further afield, the residencies by Kerry Properties -- currently solely available for rent -- recently underwent a full overhaul in their amenities and design, making them feel new all over again. That means they now boast plenty of extra perks, from floor heating, air and water purifying systems to smart access controls, built-in child locks and bespoke facilities.

Conceived with modern urban dwellers in mind, Central Residences II blends history, contemporary lifestyle and state-of-the-art services in one.

OCTOBER

Last month, we wrapped up our 16th annual That's Shanghai Food & Drink Awards, with this year's biggest awards going to Mercato (Restaurant of the Year), Union Trading Company (Bar of the Year) and Bar Rouge (Club of the Year), while Together, Funka del Sur and Club 3 1/3 came out on top in their respective categories for new restaurants, bar and club. Turn to p40 to see a full list of winners.

It's been a long tradition for us to invite some of the city's hardest working F&B personalities to appear on our movie-themed cover for this issue. Inspired by Ocean's 8, Anna Bautista (Highline), Christine Asuncion (Spread the Bagel), Danyi Gao (Shake), Camden Hauge (Egg, Bird, Bitter, Social Supply), Bina Yu (Together), Elizabeth Schieffelin (Lizzy's All Natural), Ting Ting Liang (Roxie, RIINK) and Kim Melvin (Together, Commune Social) all dressed up in their most badass outfits and out-smized Tyra Banks for the shoot.

A very special thank you goes out to Marius Ionita and Rachel Gouk from KOLLEKTIV Creative Hub – a creative branding and communications company – for photographing our beautiful models!

Elsewhere in the mag, I spoke with Tokyo-based photographer Cody Ellingham (@cbje_tokyo) about his recent trip to Shanghai in which he shot the 'Shanghai Streets' photo series in our City feature (p12). Meanwhile, Arts Editor Sarah Forman sat down with Shanghai-based teen DJ Goauchi to chat about her budding career in an ever-changing club scene (p36).

Food Editor Cristina Ng has your regular fix of the newest restaurants and bars in the city in her Eat & Drink section. Last but not least, our bar columnist Logan Brouse shares some of the most embarrassing blunders he and the city's most prominent bartenders have ever made in public. Turn to p64 to find out who lost his pants in a bar!

Until next month,

BIDDING WARS

Is Shanghai Planning to Host the 2032 Olympics?

By Tom Smith

Who could forget the 2008 Summer Olympic Games in Beijing? From the stunning opening ceremony and futuristic world-class stadiums to the two-week long spectacle of elite sporting competitions, the country showcased itself as an economic powerhouse of the 21st century. History could very well repeat itself in the near future, as China is rumored to be getting ready to host the Summer Games all over again... but this time in Shanghai.

Luo Wenhua, a member of the Shanghai Sports Administration, hinted to international media last month that the city is considering a bid to host the 2032 Summer Olympics, claiming it would be “the highest ideal.”

“Speaking for myself as a sportsman, and for each athlete, participating in the Olympics is the ultimate goal,” Luo told the AFP. “For a sportsman, hosting an integrated sports event like the Olympics would be... a dream.”

However, Luo refrained from committing outright to placing a bid, instead suggesting that the city will be keeping a close eye on Tokyo and Paris – who will host the 2020 and 2024 games, respectively – in order to learn more about how to effectively host the Olympics.

“It’s not the first time for these world-renowned sports cities to host the Olympic Games. They must have a lot of good experience in hosting,” Luo said. “Let us learn from them.”

In recent years, Shanghai has been making a concerted effort to become a globally renowned ‘sports city,’ such as improving existing facilities and hosting more international competitions of all sizes. The ultimate goal is to significantly raise the value of Shanghai’s sports industry. Beijing has made similar efforts, and come 2022 it will be the first city in the world to host both the summer and winter Olympics.

Shanghai already hosts more than 160 sporting events each year, including high-profile competitions such as the Formula One Grand Prix, Diamond League athletics and the Shanghai Rolex Masters tennis tournament, which takes place this month (for tickets, see p68).

If it were to host the Summer Games, the move may be exactly what Shanghai needs to turn the city into a global sports giant rivaling the likes of Tokyo, Paris, LA, London and New York. What do you think? Scan the code to take a poll on whether or not Shanghai should host the Olympics.

Horse Riding Woman

Videos and images of a woman riding a horse in downtown Shanghai went viral last month. The 26-year-old woman wearing a black tank top and high-heeled boots was seen with her pony near the Yan'an Lu elevated road. When passersby asked what she was doing, she responded: "Nothing, this is my pet." The woman and her horse were temporarily detained by police following the incident, but it wasn't her first run-in with the law. She received a warning from police the day before her stunt for keeping the horse in her residential compound, which is illegal in Shanghai's urban areas. Authorities asked the woman and her equine companion had to GTFO ASAP. The horse has not been seen since. Scan the code to see more photos and video from the incident.

QUOTE OF THE MONTH

"No one can shoulder the responsibilities of chairman and CEO forever"

So wrote Alibaba co-founder and chairman Jack Ma in a letter announcing his plans to retire next year. Under the 12-month succession plan, the tech billionaire will hand the reins over to 46-year-old Daniel Zhang in September 2019. Ma will also remain on Alibaba Group's board of directors until the annual general meeting of shareholders in 2020. Following his retirement, Ma plans to spend more of his time and fortune pursuing philanthropy and education. kejin / kè jīn / 氪金 v. to spend a lot of money playing a game, or on in-game purchases

- A Ah that guy just killed me! I didn't do anything to him. Why?
- B Because he can. Look at all the weapons he has. He is a kejin player.
- A But I want revenge!
- B Then you better kejin too!

In case you missed it in the news, the global economy is not doing so hot right now. Scientists have discovered that the gaming industry does especially well when the economy is bad, possibly because gaming helps us escape to a fantasy world where we have special powers, can buddy up with our best friends and conquer exotic lands, and have fulfilling lives. The gaming industry in China is booming right now, and many Chinese gamers are willing to pay hundreds – sometimes thousands – for features and weapons in games, with per-user spending growing 10-fold year-on-year.

When you drop serious money in an online game, it's called kejin. To be clear, we are not talking about the measly 5 yuan spent so you can customize your character's haircut here. Kejin is dropping one month's rent so your character in the game looks really fly, or has exclusive powers and spells, or to even take your virtual girlfriend out in style.

Those who support kejin say it's okay to spend money to have fun, while those who are opposed to it say if you always kejin to take your virtual girlfriend out, she'll be the only girlfriend you'll ever have. More cynical players even say that the ke in kejin comes from the word 'lesson,' and jin means money. Together, kejin means 'lessons you pay for,' as in you'll regret doing it but hopefully learn to know better next time.

If you don't kejin, it might take you months to get to the same level as the kejin players. The things you toil for, other players can just kejin and get it instantly. But wait a minute, we thought games were supposed to be our escape from the real world...

Well, at least happiness is guaranteed in games when you pay. Another round of World of Warcraft, anyone? Mia Li

Photographer Cody Ellingham's First Impression of

“ The fog provided an additional texture that turned the city red. In my mind, that became the color of Shanghai ”

ING RED

China's Global Financial Hub

Words by Dominic Ngai, Photos by Cody Ellingham

For Cody Ellingham (@cbje_tokyo), a New Zealand-born, Tokyo-based photographer who's been living in Japan since 2012, his current home base screams 1980s – an era that served as the inspiration for the cyberpunk aesthetics of sci-fi films like Blade Runner, and gave birth to many Japanese pop culture icons.

This bustling city is also the catalyst of Ellingham's photography career, where he has over the past few years developed a style that he describes as “quiet and still.” In his acclaimed photo series ‘Derive’ and ‘Danchi Dreams,’ the dizzying neon signs and brightly illuminated buildings along Tokyo's streets are filtered through a dreamy, futuristic façade that has become his signature, which have earned him nearly 30,000 followers on Instagram. ▶

"I like to capture the essence of a place by focusing on the architecture or cityscape as opposed to the people, but you'll still find traces of human elements through the windows of these buildings," explains Ellingham. Meanwhile, another recurring theme of his photography, as evident in his multi-part 'Derive' series that zeroes in on a particular city each time, is his penchant for capturing the essence of the past through the present.

In his latest addition to the series subtitled 'Shanghai Streets,' Ellingham spent four days in May wandering through and documenting his first impression of China's most populous and international city. Similar to Tokyo, since historic and modern architecture coexist almost side-by-side within Shanghai's vast and varied cityscape, highlighting the contrast between its older elements like the lilongs around People's Square and the former French Concession and the city's futuristic side became the overarching theme.

"I wanted to explore these older neighborhoods because they show where the city came from. I think a city, any city, shouldn't just be seen as how it 'is.' It should also be seen as how it 'was,'" says Ellingham, elaborating on his theory for 'Derive.'

As a result of a rainstorm that blew past Shanghai hours before his shoot, a layer of fog had surrounded the city, giving the photos a sense of mystique. "It provided an additional texture that turned the city red. In my mind, that became the color of Shanghai. So with the editing, I tried to emphasize that redness throughout the series."

Another connection between Shanghai and Tokyo that has been established through Ellingham's work is the gentrification happening in both cities in recent decades. In his 'Danchi Dreams' series, the photographer dives deeply into the past and present of Japan's clustered apartment blocks, many of which are now being demolished to make way for modern redevelopments.

Established in the 1960s, Danchi public housing were once the dream homes for the Japanese working and middle class. Through his photos, Ellingham managed to reflect this rapidly fading dream through the scenes in

COHOST WEST BUND

Redefining the Concept of Living Well in Shanghai

By now, many people are familiar with co-working spaces, but a Shanghai-based company is now introducing the concept of 'co-living' to China. Cohost West Bund, the first property of co-living apartment brand Cohost in collaboration with Hong Kong investors Pamflet and Deson, is located next to the Shanghai Botanical Gardens and closely connected to Xujiahui, Caohejing and the West Bund Cultural Corridor.

Inspired by the abundance of greenery in the neighborhood, award-winning architectural agency AIM introduced plenty of natural material and colors into the walls and furnishing to transform a worn-out hotel into this modern, design-forward living space with features that enforce a sense of community among tenants.

Featuring 66 tastefully furnished one- or two-bedroom units and studios over three floors, Cohost West Bund's vast array of common spaces allow residents to connect and socialize over cooking classes and potlucks in the shared kitchens and dining area, host barbecue parties at the outdoor terraces, movie nights at the entertainment room, or simply share a cup of coffee or tea in the lounge area.

Complete with complimentary access to a privately managed fitness center, indoor swimming pool and tennis court, as well as house-keeping, maintenance and reception services, Cohost West Bund is well-positioned to meet the demands of design-conscious young professionals looking for a well-rounded living experience without the formality of a conventional serviced apartment.

some of the remaining buildings around Tokyo. A sense of loneliness looms in the buildings' brightly lit corridors and the wearing surfaces of their exterior.

That same feeling was also captured in one of the shots in 'Shanghai Dreams' featuring a wall of residential buildings, where illuminated windows offer a glimpse into the human life behind the concrete façade. In another shot taken at an intersection in the quiet backstreets of People's Square, viewers are drawn into a dark visual tunnel flanked by the well-lit storefronts of a pair of old three-story buildings, with tiny dots of lights from the modern high-rises beaming through the fog in a distance.

After this trip, Ellingham admits the city's captivating energy made him want to return for both business and leisure travels. This fall, he's also planning a trip to Shenzhen to check out its futuristic architecture. "I'm also currently learning Mandarin in my free time," he adds. "In Shanghai, I saw the future." ■

CHARLOTTA GANDOLFO

Entrepreneur and Designer

Interview by Dominic Ngai, Photo by Lili Record

Originally from Sweden, Charlotta Gandolfo launched her eponymous womenswear label a little more than a year ago in Shanghai. Bringing a minimalist touch to traditional resort wear, Gandolfo's dresses are inspired by her upbringing and adventures around the world.

What's the inspiration behind your brand?

I design for internationally minded women who travel. I decided to create the brand because there wasn't really anything that caters to us and our needs: versatile clothes that are both elegant and effortless and made with high-quality material.

What is Scandinavian resort wear?

Growing up in Scandinavia, my taste is influenced by the minimalistic aesthetic from the region. This allows me to bring a unique perspective and an understated tone to resort wear, a category dominated by overly ethnic designs and material. With my designs, you can dress up or dress down for different occasions, and they're versatile enough to transition from beaches to the streets of urban metropolises.

What occasions are your dresses most suitable for?

For us, resort is neither a season nor a place, but a state of mind. With an air of playfulness and ease, my dresses aren't only for being worn at a specific place – it's an aesthetic, or a mood. I've seen my customers wear them at weddings, nightclubs in Ibiza, swimming pools of resorts, casual dinners with friends, date nights, parties, attending red carpet events and even during their travels to exotic destinations.

How has customer feedback been since you launched your brand last September?

The customers love it. Despite having produced a large quantity, everything sold out quickly and now there is a waiting list for most of the items for the summer collection.

What are your top bestselling items at the moment, and why do you think they're so popular?

One of the most popular is the Slip Dress, which looks simple, but the cut makes every woman look amazing. I have several customers who bought it in every colorway because it's so easy to wear and very comfortable. Another one is the Biker Jacket, a sequin jacket in pale gold or snakeskin that adapts the brand's design concept for fall and winter. My customers wear it as an evening jacket with a statement skirt, or with jeans, sneakers and a tee for a chic and casual look.

What's your personal favorite item from your collection, and what accessories would you pair with it?

I love all items in my collection but an outfit I wear a lot is the Black Jerry Silk Jacket and the Black Silk Harem pants, that I usually pair with black simple pointy flats during the day, and metallic heels and clutch at night. I also wear the Grace Maxi Skirt and the white silk tank top a lot. They're perfect for hanging out at my country house in the Stockholm archipelago, as well as for attending a Mediterranean wedding. The Flora Sandal in Pink Gold from The Collection goes very well with this fabric.

What's next for the brand?

This winter, I'm adding gorgeous knitted silk essentials – think cardigans and shrugs – to my collection. I'm also working with a friend, and Italian female artist, to develop the next generation of metallic jacquard pattern as well as a new delicate floral print. In addition, some of the world's most exclusive resorts are reaching out to me to sell my collection in their shops. There's a lot to look forward to.

UNDER THE LENS

Angel Chen's NYFW Debut

Last month, Shenzhen-born designer Angel Chen made her debut at New York Fashion Week to showcase her SS19 collection. The Central Saint Martins alum wowed the audience with her penchant for loud colors, bold patterns and ethnic elements, which all take center stage in her latest work. ### New Women's Watch Collection by Kate Wood

Known for their watches, sunglasses and bicycles made with natural wood and bamboo, Shanghai-born lifestyle brand Kate Wood has been busy planning its expansion to Bali and Amsterdam while simultaneously working on a new three-piece collection of women's watches. Named after European cities – Geneva, Vienna and Turin – all three feature wooden cases and leather straps of different colors, as well as a touch of metallic finishing.

OVERHEARD

“Can I get a mantou with that?”

So writes one Weibo user in response to the Lao Gan Ma hoodie that went viral during last month's Tmall China Day event during New York Fashion Week. Tao Huabi, the 71-year-old founder of the world famous Guizhou-style chili sauce, became an unlikely fashion sensation overnight after the sauce's logo (her face) was designed onto hundreds of bright red sweaters and sold at an Opening Ceremony pop-up shop. These sweaters are also available via Tmall for approximately RMB130 each. Get them while they're hot.

SCENE & HEARD

Body Blacksmith

Founded by Maurad Tcherouka (a certified trainer who previously worked at a sports medicine facility), Body Blacksmith offers a comprehensive set of classes that combine high-intensity interval training with weight lifting and cardio movements.

The rotating program is designed to train different body parts, but core stability is always an overarching emphasis. Some of the studio's most popular programs are 'Total Cardio' and 'Booty Class.' The latter is especially challenging as the instructor demonstrates the proper squat technique, which will make your glutes and posterior chain burn. With the gym's focus on proper form, you will find yourself realizing you've been doing some of these exercises all wrong, and that they're much harder with the correct posture.

While the classes are intense, the atmosphere is encouraging thanks to the ample attention and guidance given by instructors.

As such, this is not a studio for slackers, but dedicated athletes who want to get strong and fitter. They currently have two to three classes per day, each of which can accommodate a maximum of 26 athletes. They'll be bringing on more trainers to increase the number of programs and more advanced courses in the near future. Cristina Ng

FINE THREAD LIFTING

Line carving is also known as buried line lifting, it is a minimally invasive cosmetic technique. In other words, the absorbable cosmetic line is implanted in the defect or sag part of the skin. Meanwhile, the skin and fascia are stimulated to rearrange the flabby or sag muscle tissue, so as to restore the youthful and beautiful appearance. The beauty line implanted in the skin has been applied in the field of medicine for decades, and its safety is beyond doubt.

JING'AN RESIDENCE 8

The Sawires Family on What They Love about Their Shanghai Home

Since moving to Shanghai 18 months ago, Maged and Heidi Sawires and their three young children Emily (14), Amanda (10) and Steven (7) have been calling Jing'an Residence 8 home. This serviced apartment at the corner of Changshu Lu and Huashan Lu is situated right at the intersection between Jing'an district and the former French Concession. Offering six different room types, a clubhouse with a gym, children's playroom and a residents' café and lounge, as well as 24-hour security and concierge services, it has attracted many well-to-do expat and local tenants since it opened.

How long have you been living in Shanghai?

We've been living in Shanghai here for about a year and a half, and have stayed at Jing'an Residence 8 this whole time.

Why did you choose to live at Jing'an Residence 8?

We looked at several places before deciding on this building. The location is very good and it's quite close to Maged's office and also not too far away from the kids' schools. We also like the service that the management provides. On top of that, they're doing a lot of upgrades to the building and it's very well maintained compared to some of the others we've seen.

What are your favorite aspects about the compound?

We like the cleanliness of the building, and the staff are very friendly and most of them speak pretty good English, and they're always here to help us with calling taxis or just simple day-to-day translation tasks.

What are some places in the neighborhood that you always visit?

The kids love those bubble tea shops, and there are always new ones popping up around the neighborhood. We cook a lot as a family, so there are many places where we can shop for groceries, such as Avocado Lady and several import supermarkets nearby. We also have Charlie's and Costa Coffee right across the street, too.

What's the community here at the Jing'an Residence 8 like?

We like to have breakfast at the clubhouse, so we get to meet a lot of our neighbors there. There's also a big WeChat group for the tenants with around 80 members where we sometimes can talk and ask each other questions.

GONE DARK

A Concrete
Jungle-inspired Cafe
in Guangzhou

Words by Dominic Ngai, Photos by Cao Haochang

Project name: .JPG Cafe

Location: Tianhe district, Guangzhou

Area: 24 square meters

Design company: Infinity Mind

The brief: Located in Guangzhou's Zhukong International Center, the design of .JPG Cafe is inspired by the fast-paced and pressurized lifestyle of the city. Inside the small 24-square-meter space, charred reclaimed wood pieces of various lengths jut out from the ceiling and walls to create an almost claustrophobic atmosphere around the shop while bringing visual focus on its centerpiece – the coffee bar.

> infinitynide.com

▲ A rectangular concrete coffee-making station sits in the middle of the room. There are no seats or tables available in this grab-and-go concept.

▲ A barista shows off his craft at the bar counter amidst a sea of blackened wood pieces assembled in a random manner to resemble the chaotic life in modern China.

▲► The cafe's bright yellow entrance serves as a strong color contrast to the building's metallic exterior.

▼ Walls and ceiling of JPG Cafe are covered with leftover pine wood pieces that have been blackened after a carbonation process.

that's 2018 HOSPITALITY AWARDS

Forget the Journey, Go for the Destination.

After months of preparation and anticipation, the That's 2018 Hospitality Awards were held on August 30 at the Conrad Guangzhou, the event's first appearance in the Pearl River Delta.

Launched last year, That's Hospitality Awards celebrates the very best of China's diverse and world-class hospitality industry. The ceremony and gala dinner were attended by over 220 prominent personalities from around China, including hotel professionals, industry suppliers and members of the diplomatic and business community.

The That's 2018 Hospitality Awards party kicked off with a lovely wine and cocktail reception outside the Conrad Guangzhou's grand ballroom. We then moved into the ballroom for the awards ceremony. The ceremony bestowed honors on the most innovative, ambitious and acclaimed hotels in China. Thirty-three awards were given out over 10 categories, with over 100 hotels honored.

A huge thanks to our wine sponsor Summergate Fine Wines, water sponsor FIJI Water, spirit sponsor Camus and our 'Gold Sponsor,' Cathay Pacific and Cathay Dragon Airways. And of course, a major thank you to the team at Conrad Guangzhou for hosting us in their fabulous ballroom!

Without further ado, we give you the winners of the That's 2018 Hospitality Awards.

A TRIP TO URUMQI

Discover the Dramatic Landscape and Delicious Food of Xinjiang

Compared to places like Shanghai and Beijing, Urumqi in the Xinjiang Uyghur Autonomous Region rarely gets the spotlight for being a hot tourism destination in China. Nevertheless, this city is as mesmerizing as many other major cities.

Geographically positioned along the historic Silk Road, Urumqi has long been a melting pot of different cultures. Composed of Uyghur, Hui Muslim, Kazakh, Manchu, Mongol and more ethnic minority groups, the modestly sized old town is packed with a vast array of business establishments. From street vendors selling aromatic local bread to traditional musical instrument stores, there is so much to see and taste in this vibrant place.

LANDMARKS

XINJIANG UYGHUR AUTONOMOUS REGION MUSEUM

For a dose of insider knowledge of Xinjiang's natural history and ethnographic makeup, head to the Xinjiang Uyghur Autonomous Region Museum. There's a remarkable collection of mummies, most remarkably the 'Loulan Beauty,' which dates back to 1,800BC. Although not intentionally mummified, these bodies have been extremely well-preserved by the nearby desert for centuries until their excavation in the 1980s.

NANG BREAD

Nang is the culinary backbone for the Uyghur community. While it only has one name in Chinese, nang comes in all shapes and forms: from the donut-shaped buns that resemble a bagel to the gigantic flatbreads, they can easily fill up entire families for dinner. The breads are traditionally baked in tonur stoves, and you can see people carrying stacks of these home around the old town area.

THE INTERNATIONAL GRAND BAZAAR

This iconic complex is a place you must visit in Urumqi. Built in 2003, International Grand Bazaar houses a myriad of vendors selling produce and tradition handicrafts and souvenirs. The nearby square also serves as the stage for ethnic dance and music performances, including a recital of the 12 muqams commencing at 8pm every evening.

TIANSHAN MOUNTAINS

The formidable Tianshan or 'heavenly mountains' flanking the southern edge of Urumqi is an easy one-hour drive from the city. With the highest peak reaching an altitude of nearly 7,500 meters, Tianshan and its dramatic snow-capped terrains are well-worth visiting for excursionists, while faint-hearted travelers can still drive up the National Forest Park and snap a breathtaking view at Tianchi ('heavenly lake').

THE TURPAN BASIN

A three-hour drive away from Urumqi lies the old town of Turpan. Engulfed by the Turpan Basin (also known as the Death Valley of China), temperatures here can reach a meter-breaking 50 degrees Celsius in July and August. But don't let that put you off from visiting the historic Jiaohe Ruins (or 'Yarkhoto'), which remains one of the region's largest and most well-reserved ancient citadel.

MUTTON POLO

You can find mutton polo – tender spiced lamb chops served with rice – in almost every alleyway around the city. This hearty dish is garnished with shredded carrot and apricot for sweetness, and cooked in a sizable pot that could easily feed a dozen people. A small plate of finely sliced and pickled carrots is a common pairing to add a touch of zing to the palate.

PEPPERED CHICKEN

This dish is a common sight at Hui Muslim family restaurants behind the Grand Bazaar. The chicken comes in halves or whole, and is braised until it's tender before getting tossed with finely sliced red onions and marinated in a piquant chili-peppercorn sauce. The taste is fresh and pleasantly numbing, and is suitable for those with a penchant for Sichuan dishes.

PHILIP GREFER

Founder of the WISE, and
Co-founder of Fake Music
Media & NEU

Interview by Edoardo Donati Fogliazza

“...I finally could tell my parents what I was doing all that time in China”

Fake Music Media is one of the most respected and well-known record labels in China. Having booked the likes of Röyksopp, Hot Chip and Faithless to China while managing domestic artists like Nova Heart, SHAO and The Hormones, their co-founder Philip Grefer has gone on to develop a conference exploring the intersection of creativity, business, science and technology. Under the name WISE, on October 26, they'll partner with UCCA, China's leading contemporary art museum. Grefer talks to us about telling his parents what he does, AI and how technology affects the music ecosystem.

What have been the greatest challenges and satisfactions of bringing Chinese musicians to the international stage with your label FakeMusicMedia?

When we started FMM in 2008 and it was an absolute novelty to tour a Chinese band abroad or bring international acts to China. So when we brought electro punk outfit Pet Conspiracy to Berlin, Cologne, Barcelona and Budapest, it was big news back here. They also played a legendary gig at one of the first editions at Hong Kong's Clockenflap festival – every year when I go, people still ask me about it. Then, unfortunately, lead singer (and FMM co-founder) Helen Feng quit the band. We were just in Istanbul where we met Rodion, who would go on to become the producer of Nova Heart's first album, so we put all our focus on this new project. Now Nova Heart is one of the best-known Chinese indie bands here and abroad. When we got a full page in Germany's most important newspaper, I finally could tell my parents what I was doing all that time in China. Now we have our new signing, The Hormones from Chengdu, playing in Australia in November. It's their first time playing outside of China, so that's quite exciting.

How did you go about combining music and technology?

It probably all started with Kraftwerk. When I was studying in California in the mid-2000s, you could already see that music was one of the first industries to be disrupted by tech. Companies like Spotify, Tencent, Apple or YouTube play an ever increasingly important role in the music ecosystem. But also, how music is produced has changed drastically. AI can now write music by itself, and it might soon be produced in VR or AR.

Tell our readers about your most recent endeavor, WISE.

I wanted to create something where I can make good use of all the experience I've gathered in the last three decades and surround myself with people who are smarter than me. I studied political science, economics and history, worked in media, PR, a government agency, a gaming company, as an entrepreneur, and have been lucky enough to be one of the few foreigners involved in the Chinese music industry. It's like a think tank for millennials, where we try to find answers to how we want to live in the future.

What should we expect from the upcoming WISE event?

WISE is a platform for big ideas as well as practical knowledge. It's all about learning, for your job, for life, in a fun and inspiring way. It's about looking at the world from different perspectives and having them clash to create new insights.

We have a wide range of speakers at the crossroads of creativity and tech. We'll talk about China's emerging youth cultures, the state of the electronic music scene, hip hop, vogueing, and where design is heading in the future.

Your career spanned several disciplines and industries. What advice do you have for aspiring polymaths?

Try to stay ahead of AI, use your full human and creative potential to do so and enjoy your life.

COMING TO A THEATER NEAR YOU

★ SEPTEMBER 30 ★

Shadow

Director Zhang Yimou brings to the screen a story of 'struggle and survival' in a film that translates the visual style of traditional ink painting into a new kind of art. Set in the Three Kingdoms Period, an exiled king goes up against his doppelganger in a fight to reclaim his land and his title. Having been screened at multiple film festivals in the last year, this will be the official public release of the action packed tale of darkness and redemption.

Brothers of the Wind

After the death of his mother, a teenage boy named Lukas (Manuel Camacho) struggles to navigate his relationship with his grieving father (Tobias Moretti). As the two grow further apart, Lukas increasingly turns to nature to find his own path, upon which he discovers an abandoned eaglet. What ensues is a coming of age story of growth, perseverance and the relentless pursuit of freedom.

"This AI's heart is too dark, the music is shallow"

... a QQMusic user said of AI composer, AIVA's, newly released album of Chinese music. While Aiva Technologies SRL's music writing AI technology isn't new, its foray into East Asian art certainly is. Their eponymous program has been composing music through 'studying' the works of Bach, Beethoven, Mozart and other canonical greats. Recently, 'she' chose to switch up her musical styling and released an album of Epcot-esque, Chinese-inspired classical music, which you can find on Spotify, Apple Music and QQMusic. AIVA's Chinese name, 艾媧 (Aiwa), was specifically chosen because of its relationship to the terms 'elder,' suggesting knowledge, and 'Nüwa,' the mother goddess of Chinese mythology. Impressive as it sounds, it seems the AI sister from another mister may have yet to fully grasp the taste of audiences in the Middle Kingdom.

HAO BU HAO

Twenty-one out of 324 films being screened at the 2018 Busan International Film Festival were either partially or completely filmed in China. While some of the nominees have already made it to theaters, like Chinese blockbuster Dying to Survive, others like The Island, directed by Huang Bo, will be making their debut on the global stage. These films will air alongside a roster of representatives from 28 countries, in a nine-day celebration of emerging talent in Asia.

Bu Hao

With a Crazy Rich Asians sequel set to be filmed in Shanghai and Hong Kong, Chinese audiences are still left waiting on the first film. The movie, featuring an all-Asian cast, was a smashing success worldwide, though it still has no release date in China. Here's hoping it hits theaters here soon.

Xu Zheng

Not acquainted with Xu Zheng's work? You should be. While we'll forgive you for not being familiar with his role as a pig-like beast in the film adaptation of Journey to the West, Xu's part in this summer's hit black comedy Dying to Survive is credited with the film's massive success (RMB3-billion at the box office). Here are five things you should know about Xu Zheng:

- 1 Born to Act:
The Shanghai-born actor has been fascinated with acting since he was in primary school, where he took part in a plethora of school performances. Xu then went on to graduate from Shanghai Theatre Academy in 1994, one of the best of its kind in the Middle Kingdom.
- 2 He Married His Co-Star:
Xu made his mark with his comical portrayal of a pig-like character on the 2000 TV series roughly translated as 'Sunny Pig,' where he met his current wife, Tao Hong, while working on set.
- 3 A Box Office Guarantee:
After taking center screen in Lost on Journey, Xu directed and starred in two sequels – Lost in Thailand and Lost in Hong Kong, both of which were box office hits.
- 4 Sophomore Baldy:
His signature bald head wasn't a blessing to his acting career, causing problems for him at a young age. In school, classmates ridiculed him during his sophomore year when he started losing his hair.
- 5 He's Socially Responsible:
Xu was recently ranked No.1 on a social responsibility list conducted by Beijing Normal University and the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences. Recognized for his charitable deeds, Mr. Xu is the face of a charity that provides health insurance for underprivileged households.

WHAT'S NEW

'Special Girl'

Ryan Hemsworth's most recent music video 'Special Girl' was filmed at the training school for a prominent chain of hair salons in Shanghai. In the video from director Noah Sheldon, hundreds of students are seen cutting and styling models' hair, as well as participating in group exercises, jogging, clapping and dancing in the building's courtyard. Between the two impeccably choreographed dancers that move throughout the classrooms and Hemsworth's hip hop infused electro beats, the playful video is a unique look inside one of the country's quirkiest brands.

BAMBOO PRINCESS

Wednesday Campanella's KOM_I Talks Fashion and Dancing Herself Clean

By Valerie Osipov

It's pouring outside. In the middle of the stage, a sphere-like figure made of gold foil flutters as it fills with air. The music has already started and seems to build with the rain, though the crowd at Beijing's Strawberry Music Festival has long forgotten about their muddy shoes and dripping wet ponchos. Everyone is fixated on the stage, scanning every corner in hopes to catch a glimpse of KOM_I before she makes her grand appearance.

The trendy frontwoman of Japanese dance-pop group Wednesday Campanella is notorious for her quirky and unconventional live performances. She surely doesn't disappoint this time – the glistening foil orb slowly opens, unveiling KOM_I's dollish face as she peers out at the unsuspecting crowd with delight.

Her vibrant stage presence can be compared to that of Icelandic indie enigma Björk, and is nothing short of mesmerizing – wide-eyed fans stand hypnotized as the vivacious pop pixie prances across the stage, fluidly moving with her music. Though despite her incredible liveliness, out of the spotlight, she admits she's quite the opposite. "I'm not really an energetic person. My performance is like washing myself. It sounds cheesy but it's a ritual session for myself and the audience."

The group consists of two other members – Kenmochi Hidefumi and Dir.F, who are longtime friends and collaborators. From their first gig together in Tokyo to landing slots at festival overseas – such as Tyler, the Creator's Camp Flog Gnaw Carnival in Los Angeles last year – Wednesday Campanella is well on their way to becoming an international sensation. But if you ask KOM_I, she still feels tiny.

Bold, electric hits like 'Audrey' and 'Aladdin' from their sophomore release SUPERMAN playfully push the boundaries of bubblegum pop, enhanced with bouncy club beats that are dangerously danceable, while more surreal techno tracks like 'Melos' and 'The Bamboo Princess,' from their most recent album Galapagos, experiment with traditional sounds and showcase the purity of KOM_I's angelic voice.

"When I write, I like to preserve a scene or emotion I had before," the singer-songwriter says, stating that she embraces all vibes as inspiration and the transformations they bring. "We are always changing, like liquid." She does just that on her tracks, organically progressing from delicate vocals to edgy rap verses.

Recently, the band gained even more exposure after being featured on Scottish synth-pop trio CHVRCHES' new single 'Out of My Head,' which KOM_I contributed lyrics to.

Aside from being a music icon, the J-pop oddity is a fashion force as well, having been voted one of Vogue Japan's 'Women of the Year' in 2017. "My current mood is 90s bitch," says KOM_I (though she never leaves the house without her wireless headphones.) "And I'm following many Chinese girls on Instagram. I'm really inspired by them because their fashion is fearless and they have the energy of a young country. I feel like China is the oldest and youngest country at the same time."

Wednesday Campanella's China tour includes stops in Beijing, Guangzhou, Shenzhen and Shanghai. Though it's not her first time, KOM_I is excited to see some new places in each city by day – especially Shanghai as she's eager to go to Disneyland – and hit the clubs by night.

"And hotpot! I would love to have hotpot after clubbing."

Teen DJ Goouchi on Smoking Cats and Sleeping on Couches

By Sarah Forman

While many children in China grow up learning to play traditional instruments like the piano or violin, Shi Jiayuan, better known by her stage name Gouachi, opted for turntables instead. Over the last few years, she's made a name for herself in Shanghai and across China, but her story is just as interesting as her sound.

This is the first tattoo I got," 17-year-old Shi says as she pulls her denim pant leg up to her knee. The words 'Disk Jockey' take up the outer right side of her calf in an ornate font, reminiscent of a tattoo you might see on the arms of a 20-something in downtown Los Angeles. "It's kind of stupid," she says laughing, as we talk about the others on her arms and the back of her neck. A ghost emoji, a smoking cat sticking his head through a piece of bread and a protective Egyptian eye are among the most visible.

It's uncommon to see someone this young covered in as much ink as Shi, but then again, there's nothing particularly common about this Shanghai-based teenage DJ. She lives with her friends – not her parents – and has played everywhere from Chengdu and Ningbo to Hangzhou and Shenzhen. "I loved playing in Shenzhen," she says laughing. "In Chengdu everything closes super early, not like in Shanghai. But in Shenzhen, the people were so excited, so enthusiastic, they danced so much. Afterwards we went to Oil Club and their speakers were so good, the sound broke one of the windows." But despite her easygoing demeanor, things haven't always been so easy for Shi.

A skull marks her left bicep, with what look like crystallized flowers emerging from the center of its forehead. "I was sick two or three years ago, and it turned me into another person." During that time, Shi was anorexic, weighing just 30 kilograms. "Most people don't believe this was me," she says, pulling up a photo on her phone that was completely unrecognizable from the healthy, confident young woman sitting before us. "I had to go to the doctor in the morning, once or twice a week. It reminds me that I can change things, that I can always get better."

Not long after she started to work towards a healthy weight, she saw an advertisement for a free DJ lesson at CTRL Studio. After reposting the article, she contacted the manager to claim her class, and with a few other friends they went to see what the studio space over on Kaixuan Lu was all about. After one lesson, she signed up for 10, but only made it to the first five before a leg injury put a pause on her progress. She forgot everything she'd learned during the unexpected hiatus, but once her leg was healed, Shi returned to the studio and has stayed there ever since.

"I used to come sleep on the couch when I'd play a weekday gig," she says, clutching a folding chair to her chest. "One night in the winter it was so cold, I slept with my bag and this chair on top of me to keep warm." When she first started out, the only opportunities she had to DJ publicly were on Thursdays, where she could be found doing hour-long sets at Arcade on Fuxing

OUT

Lu. "One time my dad came to the studio and found me on the couch. He said I looked like I'd been doing drugs because I was so tired, and told me that I needed to stop, but I would just try to explain to him how much I love it and promise to focus on my school as well."

At first balancing the two was hard for her, but as she progressed and became better known in the circuit, she moved away from weekday gigs into weekends. She's since been able to travel across the country, playing in clubs of all shapes and sizes, while still making some time for her homework and a reasonable amount of sleep. She doesn't much care about those things though.

For Shi, there are really only a few things she cares about – art, her mother, her friends and her cat Stan. "DJing is like...a way to show others what you're thinking, what you want to say. It's the same for my painting or drawing, and it's why I want to study video production in university. It can tell a story." She went on to talk about how Claude Monet does this with his use of light and color in impressionism, how much she listened to Murlo when she first started playing, and the way Alduous Huxley's writing shaped how she looks at the world. But to Shi, music and art aren't just about her – they're about other people, and an experience. "If I play very early in the night, it can't be such a heavy set – for the people that DJ, it's hard to follow that and keep building the intensity." Shi spends hours getting ready for each set she puts on, having her own copy of keys to the studio where she was once a student. "I listen to the sets of people playing with me before I prepare my material and what's suitable for this party... I think more about the DJ lineup because I can never know who is going to come." She thinks about the dancers too, stockpiling a reserve of tracks to pull from depending on the crowd, but she only ever knows what will work when she's in the room seeing how people respond. For Shi, there's only so much you can ever anticipate, but being present and planning forward – knowing herself and thinking about others – has brought her this far, and it looks as though there's no stopping her now.

“ Their speakers were so good, the sound broke one of the windows ”

When he was 22, Smith lost six kilograms in 14 days. While he admits he still struggles with his weight, he currently maintains it by doing intermittent fasting, avoiding bread and working out regularly.

In 2016, Smith won an Oscar for Best Original Song, but erroneously said in his acceptance speech that he was the first gay person to win an Oscar. Elton John called him out on it at the after party, to which he apologized profusely.

Smith once skipped school to go to a Lady Gaga concert. He forged a letter from his father on the library computer stating he 'had to go to a funeral.' While all could've been perfect, he made a rookie mistake of forgetting to log out of his account, leading the librarian to discover the note.

The singer is very open about his affinity for partying and drinking. On The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon, Smith said he once threw up in his hand at a Sydney bar after taking a shot of tequila.

He scored an unexpected win at the 2015 BET Awards in the Best New Artist category.

His parents told him that he's related to pop star Lily Allen, which the 'Smile' singer later confirmed on Twitter. Allen's brother, Game of Thrones actor, Alfie, questioned the initial connection, but they are in fact distant cousins.

Smith held a royal-themed 26th birthday party in Portugal as it fell on the same day as Prince Harry and Meghan Markle's wedding.

Smith hates karaoke and will only ever sing Fifth Harmony's songs ('Work from Home' is his go-to song). During his Carpool Karaoke session, James Cordon hooked him up with the popular American girl group and they had a blast.

When he won Record of the Year and Song of the Year for 'Stay with Me' at the 2015 Grammys, he thanked the guy who broke his heart.

'Money on My Mind' might be one of Smith's most popular singles, but the singer once admitted he hates the song.

10 THINGS YOU DIDN'T KNOW ABOUT SAM SMITH

As Sam Smith prepares to take the stage at Shanghai's Mercedes-Benz Arena, That's has dug up some facts on the emotionally expressive master of pop songs for the brokenhearted. Time to hit the books and get ready for his The Thrill of It All World Tour.

Three New Homegrown Albums on Our Radar This Month

By Sarah Forman

Flow West to You by Endless White

Xi'an-based Endless White have just released their first album in two years, Flow West to You. While they've been around since 2015, they've swapped out a few of the original members, making for a new four-piece outfit that is really cementing their sound. Signed to Ruby Eyes Records, their shoegazey guitars, high-pitched vocals, and frenetic power chords make for a 10-track dreamy kind of heartbreak. The indie rock band's most recent album is more focused with a stronger production value to back it up. Each song featuring vocalist Zhang Wanyi more predominantly than their 2016 release, this album is bright and bittersweet, giving you all the feels from the inside out.

Yoyogi by Kaygeeci

Harsh lyrics can be heard on Kaygeeci's second EP Yoyogi. The third song '-w-' sports the lyric "I found your b*tch on Tinder, she called me little Bieber," but the only thing this Beijing-based rapper has in common with the Canadian banned from entering the country is an affinity for Ferraris. It starts out with heavy, trappy beats, followed by old school hip-hop splicing, and ends with the track 'Savagest,' which pays homage to Tricky's haunting, slow pacing. Despite its length, the four-track EP showcases a diverse range of rap produced by YUNG DOW and an entertaining array of styles from the capital's underground scene.

Listen here: kaygeeci.bandcamp.com/releases

Aerodynamics by Parachutes on Fire

Parachutes on Fire have brought their latest album, Aerodynamics, in for a landing. All of their groovy, psychedelic tracks boast aviation-centric lyrics and titles. 'Holiday' has a beachy, piña colada craving vibe, whereas 'Tailspin' takes cues from classic, space age 60s rock. The band's members are veterans of the Shanghai music scene, and their bold harmonies and appreciation for acoustic guitar bring elements of folk into the mix. Smooth sailing!

THE STORY SO FAR...

Looking back on the 15 previous editions of the most prestigious food and drink awards in the city...

Way back when, That's Shanghai loved a party. So we had two – one for bars and one for restaurants. The Bar Awards were held at Che in Xintiandi (“Nali?” we hear you say), the big winners being Long Bar and Blarney Stone. In the Restaurants Awards at Baci (“Nali?” again), M on the Bund picked up three and Ashanti Dome two.

One award ceremony this time, in the Ambrosia garden on Fenyang. Like the evolution of man, Shanghairen emerged from their barstools to the dance floors, with the new Club of the Year award going to Park 97. Blarney Stone picked up Bar of the Year for the second year running, as did M on the Bund with the Best Restaurant gong.

The Awards were fast becoming a huge gala evening, this time at VIP room, which was on Wulumuqi Lu but is now dead. A certain David Laris stamped his mark, winning Restaurant of the year with Laris in Three on the Bund, while DKD’s short-lived success was decorated with Club of the Year.

Do we give the kiss of death to Awards venues? The funky Pier One played host in 2006 – during the brief time it was open – and saw registered votes eclipse 2,000 for the first time. Laris once again struck restaurant gold for his eponymous place, while Bar Rouge cruised to bar glory for the first but certainly not the last time.

That's Shanghai came over all artsy: Suzhou Creek, 1930s decor and over 600 exclusive guests at the River South Art Center. It was the second year of Bund domination, with Jean Georges nicking Restaurant of the Year off his housemate Laris, and their neighbors Glamour Bar winning Best Bar.

Lounge 18 was the venue this time (yup, the curse continues), which also picked up Best New Bar. Their friends upstairs at Bar Rouge claimed Best Bar back from Glamour, while in posh nosh stakes Hamilton House won Best New Restaurant and Casa 13 Best Restaurant. May their souls rest in peace.

It was all hail the new guard in 2009, with hosts M1NT picking up both Best New Bar and Best Bar, and Cantina Agave winning Best New Restaurant and Best Restaurant. The wonderful Cotton Ding won Personality of the Year, while a certain Paul Pairet won Best French for Mr & Mrs Bund. Not the last we’ll be hearing about him...

Life is a cabaret, old chum, come to the cabaret. Yes, Chinatown was the host, and damn that closing down curse, because we loved that place, and Chinatown Charlie, who won Personality of the Year. El Coctel arrived on the scene with Best New Bar, M1NT retained Best Bar, Mr. Willis took Best New Restaurant, while the PuLi’s Jing’an won Best Restaurant.

We got all abattoir chic on your asses, moving the party to 1933, where our amigos from Lola won Best New Bar, Bar Rouge took the Best Bar back after a bit of a break, Glo London picked up Best New Restaurant, Brad Turley took Best Restaurant with Goga, and Austin Hu was crowned culinary king with Best Chef.

The Swatch Art Peace Hotel played host, but it was their neighbors at the VOL Group who really had reasons to celebrate the night, picking up Best French and Best Fine Dining for Mr & Mrs Bund, Best New Restaurant for Ultraviolet, Best Chef for Paul Pairet and Bar/Club of the Year for Bar Rouge. Sometimes that cinq-ing feeling can be a good thing, eh mes amis?

It was fiesta time at Unico, justifying their award for Bar of the Year. The VOL Group did alright for themselves once again, with Best French for Mr & Mrs Bund, Best Chef for Monsieur Pairet and Club of the Year for Bar Rouge. Tock’s won Best New Restaurant, while Scott Melvin’s The Commune Social won Restaurant of the Year.

Salmos Lounge saw our not-so-humble annual soiree that year, and we cursed a couple of places: speak-easy The Boulevard won Best New Bar (but prohibition subsequently got the better of it) and Cirque le Soir Best New Club (may its tasseled titties rest in peace). Bar Rouge won their sixth Club of the Year title, Unico scooped Bar of the Year, while Coquille picked up Best Restaurant.

We returned to the glamorous confines of M1NT in 2015, which our readers also chose as Club of the Year. Overall it was a big night for The Bund with Paul Pairet picking up a Lifetime Achievement Award, while his Mr & Mrs Bund took home the coveted Restaurant of the Year Award. The Bull & Claw won Best New Restaurant and fortunately our curse seems to not have followed them, while The Commune Social’s Scott Melvin ascended to the throne as Best Chef.

Fusion was our host for the awards in 2016, and the big wins went to Mr & Mrs Bund (Restaurant of the Year), The Nest (Bar of the Year) and Le Baron (Club of the Year). Meanwhile, Baoism, Parrot and Elevator took home top prizes for their categories for the new kids on the block. The title of Chef of the Year went to our hometown boy Tony Lu from the Fu empire.

2017

We said hello again to M1NT (and their sharks) last year, who was also named Club of the Year, but Austin Hu, who picked up two of the biggest awards of the night – Chef of the Year and New Restaurant of the Year for Diner – turned out to be the biggest winner of the night. Raw Eatery & Wood Grill, a relatively new face on the Shanghai dining scene, was named Restaurant of the Year. The unfortunate curse returned to haunt the New Club of the Year winner SMASH, which shuttered just weeks after receiving their plaque. Oops.

GEO VALDIVIESO AND VICTOR DOUKOV

The Dynamic Duo Tell Us What's 'UP'

Interview by Cristina Ng

Since meeting at MINT Shanghai five years ago, the fast friends have wanted to open something together. After completing other big name projects such as Revolucion Cocktail (Victor) and The Captain (Geo), they are finally teaming up for an ambitious 'cocktail club' named UP.

How did you know the time was finally right to open something together?

VD: I was ready to move on, and he was the person that I wanted to [open a club] with. Even though we have different personalities, we always complete each other. He is the perfect face for a bar, while I'm in the back making sure everybody is safe.

Who else is involved?

GV: Max Trullas Moreno (MTMDESIGN) is working on the design and construction of the space, and we also have Carlos Sotomayor doing the food. Siu Tang from The Orange Blowfish is working on some artwork for the space.

What kind of food will Carlos serve?

VD: We are aiming for comfort, so think premium fast food. You can get sweet and sour chicken and dumplings in takeaway boxes. When you party, you always want to eat something, and it's a hassle to find something that is of good quality after midnight. At UP, you can pop a bottle and have a burger late at night.

“Originality is everywhere, so we are full of our own new ideas”

What will the drink prices be like?

VD: Nothing will be more than RMB100. Even though we are aiming at a younger generation of trendy locals with a lot of cocktail knowledge, we still want to keep this a high-volume bar.

Will people who don't like clubs enjoy UP?

VD: Yes. It's not a club club, it's a cocktail bar slash club. It can be a lot of things at once. If you want a lounge vibe, come earlier or hang out on the terrace.

GV: The main goal is to satisfy all moods. While the venue is quite big, we can transform the space by closing off areas earlier and reopening them as needed.

Will you have fireworks or sharks?

VD: While we have gotten a lot from previous venues, we need to respect our own identity.

GV: Originality is everywhere, so we are full of our own new ideas. With this team behind us, it's even easier to keep the creativity alive.

Up is due to open mid-October at 2/F, 688 Shaanxi Bei Lu, by Wuding Lu 陝西北路688号2楼, 近武定路.

GRAPE VINE

The onset of autumn in Shanghai has been marked yet again by the traditional changing of an ice cream shop into a hairy crab stall. That's right; Bonus on Wulumuqi Lu has shuttered, but you can still head to their Ruijin Lu location for more scoops.

Our newly minted That's Shanghai Food & Drink Awards 2018 Chef of the Year, Danyi Gao, has three branches of her new Vietnamese concept, Bun Cha Cha, in the works. As the name suggests, bowls of rice noodles with grilled pork, herbs and fish sauce are taking center stage. The first two stores will be in Pudong and Qibao, while a downtown location will open at Lippo Plaza before Christmas.

American chains Red Lobster and Shake Shack are confirmed for their ifc Mall and Xintiandi locations respectively, but if munching on a cone of charcuterie is more your speed, Spanish-import MAS on Kangding Lu has got your back.

Meanwhile, the long-awaited Pierogi Ladies' reopening happened at the end of September while Homeslice's new joint on Yuyuan and Dingxi should be open any time now. The dosas at Currify's Taixing Lu outpost must be flying out of the kitchen because they're already working on a second branch on Wuding Lu.

Lost Heaven is adding a hot pot concept above their Silk Road restaurant on Julu Lu. Downstairs, in the group's More Than Eat food hub, Uniman's creative dumplings have been usurped by Mammamia pizzeria.

WIN! RMB500 Voucher at Nikutei

Calling all meat lovers! Purveyors of delicious yakiniku, Nikutei Watami has landed in Shanghai. Watami Group first launched Nikutei in Taiwan where they developed quite a following for their Japanese beef dishes. Head over to Daning International Commercial Plaza and taste everything from the delicious sukiyaki to thinly sliced barbecued steaks. The restaurant also makes a show stopping donburi, which piles meat on rice in the shape of Mount Fuji. Nikutei offers a premium dining experience coupled with excellent value, with an average spend of RMB130 per person. They are offering a RMB500 voucher to one lucky winner. To win, simply scan the official That's Shanghai WeChat QR code and wait for the competition announcement.

CHAR Bar & Grill

Playful Iterations of Brunch Standards

Sunday in Shanghai means it's time for brunch and CHAR Bar & Grill's creative renditions are an excellent addition to the scene. A high point is 'Where are my eggs?' which gives eggs Benedict the steakhouse treatment by placing a beautifully poached egg atop beef tenderloin, rocket and confit onions, while pasta, slowly cooked beef cheeks and marinated king prawns are popular choices, too. Don't forget to hit up the DIY Bloody Mary station and enjoy iconic CHAR desserts such as mini banana cheesecake or Nutella-dusted chocolate brownie. RMB298 for three courses, plus RMB198 for two-hour free flow wine and Bloody Marys.

YONG YI TING

One Michelin Star Three-peat in 2019 Guide

For many chefs, receiving a Michelin Star is the ultimate achievement. Once the coveted award is bestowed, maintaining this honor is of the utmost importance. At the Mandarin Oriental Pudong's Yong Yi Ting, Chef Tony Lu has guided his team to a momentous third one-star recognition in the Michelin Guide Shanghai 2019.

In honor of this occasion, the hotel is launching a combined dining and Tesla test drive offer. This autumn, 'The 24 Hours' offer allows guests to take a top-of-the-line electric vehicle out for a spin and indulge in a luxurious eight-course Chinese dinner at the Mandarin Oriental Pudong's signature restaurant.

Known as a pioneer of high-end Chinese cooking, Tony Lu has mastered the traditions of Jiangnan cuisine while leaving his own refined signature on the genre. He showcases the diverse influences of Shanghai and neighboring Jiangsu and Zhejiang provinces in a manner that appeals to local diners and international guests alike.

Savor Chef Lu's interpretation of Chinese Imperial culture at Yong Yi Ting. In true Jiangnan style, the meal features the season's most sought-after specialties such as hairy crab and osmanthus. Meal highlights include avocado marinated hairy crab tartare with buckwheat chips, oven-baked lobster stuffed with cheesy hairy crab and goji wolfberry ice cream with osmanthus, gorgon fruit and baked lotus puff.

If exploring the world of delicious Chinese fine dining as well as the latest in green technology advancements appeals to you, then 'The 24 Hours' is a must. This menu is exclusive for Travelzoo members and is available for booking until October 30 for RMB1,188 per person. Feel free to upgrade to a Club Delight luxury accommodation package to receive a RMB600 credit on dining and in the spa to maximize your enjoyment.

TACOLICIOUS

The Dolled Up Double Decker You Never Knew You Needed

By Sarah Forman

The Place

A collaboration of foodie favorites, Logan Brouse of Logan's Punch, Adrian Wall of Joe's Pizza, Thijs Oomens and Saira Shazad of BYFO Hot Sauce have come together to bring Shanghai a new type of taco. Setting up shop on the corner of Yueyang and Dongping Lu in Goga's former home, they've transformed the red-bricked two-story restaurant into a modern Mexican marvel. One of the few spots in the neighborhood with an outdoor rooftop patio, Tacolicious is intimate and trimmed with fairy-light filled tequila bottles.

The Food

Heavy at heart, many Americans in particular tend to think 'large portions' when it comes to food from south of the border. Tacolicious, however, aims to deliver quality over quantity, and the first instance can be found in the chips served with comically small bowls of delicious salsa and guacamole (RMB40). The deep-fried flour tortilla wedges are dusted in house-made Cajun spice mix that brings a smoky sweetness to their airy crunch.

The tortilla soup (RMB50) is another solid starting point. Green pepper, onion and corn make for mouthfuls of crunchy veg in a light but well-seasoned tomato broth with freshly grilled cubes of juicy chicken and crisp corn tortilla topper.

Now, two tacos might not sound like enough to satiate any real craving, but the double shells put them over the edge. Crispy corn is melded to a soft, flour tortilla by a thick layer of melted cheese. No longer will you have to choose between the two greats – they've forever been bound in mozzarella matrimony.

Purple pickled cabbage brightens up a number of the tacos, our favorite being the classic bean and cheese (RMB55 for two). The corn and legume combo are especially dairy heavy, in soft but crunchy bites that even a true carnivore couldn't complain about.

The mapo tofu (RMB60) is a pleasantly surprising diversion from the Tex-Mex mix. While the classic dish uses soft bean curd, this iteration uses dried tofu with a firmer texture better suited to a taco situation. The addition of kimchi adds welcome acidity to the tomato and mushroom. While we'd suggest a name change, they are worth an order.

The tender carne asado steak (RMB65) pairs really well with crunchy coleslaw and creamy chipotle dressing. Though the real hit is the Szechuan twice cooked pork (RMB65) with a toothsome texture that allows the mala flavor to linger on your palate. A sprinkling of cilantro – common in both Chinese and Mexican cuisine – pulls it all together for a harmonious cross-cultural exchange.

If you're looking for something lighter, the ceviche (RMB65) comes as an alternative to the carb-heavy items on the menu. Several types of shredded pescado marinate in a punchy citrus sauce, flavored with a hint of spice and green garnish.

With a bar backed by Brouse, the cocktails are also one for the books. Made with Capi soda, the Paloma (RMB65) is strong and sweet with a perfectly proportioned lime accent, while the Mexican Mule (RMB60) blends tequila (instead of vodka) with ginger beer for a beverage that carries an earthier taste than its Russian cousin. 2.5/3

The Vibe

While its compact size and cozy setting are perfect for an intimate, casual meal, the combo can make for longer wait times. That being said, if you're in good company, and order up a round or two of their well-spiced cocktails, you won't have much to worry about. Its understated décor is cute and modest, which is breath of fresh air in this sometimes over the top city of ours. 1/2

Total Verdict: 3.5/5

Price: RMB125-250 per person

Who's going: those that like a good drink and aren't married to a traditional idea of Mexican food

Good for: dates, a meal outdoors and long lunches

OXALIS

Simplistic French Refinement

By Cristina Ng

The Place

Although Oxalis has been open for months now, this addition to Shanghai's French dining scene is still flying under the radar. While The Waterhouse at South Bund is a masterpiece of contemporary design, there's just not much else going on in the area.

Chef Jonas Noël's creative take on 'bistronomy' is inspired by a 1990s culinary movement whereby chefs applied fine dining backgrounds to more casual concepts. His own journey began at Michel Bras where he foraged for an edible herb called oxalis. He then honed his skills at Oslo's Bagatelle, Hong Kong's Caprice and our own L'Atelier de Joël Robuchon.

The Food

Single bites such as chickpea fries with a creamy center and crisp crust (RMB48) are good teasers to the chef's style. Raw scallop, savory lemon curd and coriander topping make this an intensely flavorful starter.

Raw and hand-cut Aussie Angus beef (RMB168) goes beyond your typical tartare thanks to the addition of some of the chef's favorite flavors: Laphroaig whisky, caviar and Indian almonds. Instead of the standard raw egg yolk, Noël experimented with cooking it at five different temperatures until he found a way to give it a buttery texture that works perfectly in this dish.

The gloriously flaky Atlantic halibut (RMB128) served under a bread crust with snow peas, radish, beurre blanc and chives is a memorable main.

We also enjoyed the spinach and ricotta 'ravioli' (RMB108), where the additions of mushrooms, hazelnut and edamame provide notes of earthiness and freshness.

The most impressive dish on the dinner menu is roasted Berkshire pork shoulder blade (RMB698), which has a layer of perfectly crisp skin on top of meat cooked to a beautiful tenderness. A surprising combination of raw, cooked and pickled apple slices complement the protein in a lovely manner.

Sadly, one of our favorite dishes, the free-range chicken terrine made with Shaoxing wine, is no longer available on the dinner menu. To get a taste of that, you'll have to check out their express lunch sets (starting at RMB188).

We are often too full for dessert when we visit Oxalis, but missing out on the exquisite Grand Marnier soufflé (RMB88) would be a crime. 2.5/3

The Vibe

We are big fans of Oxalis' deceptively simple food. The spacious and comfortable dining room shines during the day when the space is bathed in light, which is great as their brunch and lunch sets are reasonably priced. The service is consistently excellent, but if we could change one thing, it would be the boring downtempo playlist, which does nothing to uplift the atmosphere. 1.5/2

Total Verdict: 4/5

Price: RMB300-500 per person plus 10 percent service

Who's going: French food lovers

Good for: well-priced lunch and brunch, soufflé and that pork

ALIMENTARI & DEGUSTERIA

Popular Italian Deli Given an Upgrade

By Cristina Ng

The Place

When Popolo Group decided to turn their short-lived wine bar, QV, into the second branch of their popular deli and grocer, Alimentari, excitement rippled among Jing'an snobs who can't bear leaving their neighborhood. If that weren't good enough, an all-day brunch menu has been added to the mix, bringing excellent value meat and cheese boards and bottled cocktails for which the Anfu Lu branch is known.

The Food

Available from 9am-6pm (early birds can snag a coffee starting from 8am), Alimentari & Degusteria's all-day brunch features a range of breakfast items including egg sandwiches, power bowls, toasts and waffles. Start your day off with a simple egg and cheese sandwich (RMB30) or sample the best of the deli counter with a flavorful bowl of Mediterranean grains (RMB65) topped with quinoa, lentils, capers, olives, artichokes, cucumber, sun-dried tomatoes, pickled onions, anchovies and lemon olive oil dressing.

If you want to treat yourself, we recommend the A&D Combo (RMB65) consisting of two eggs cooked any style, bacon or Italian sausage, minted zucchini, grilled tomato, toast and butter. Dipping hot buttered pieces of toast into sunny side up egg yolks is a simple pleasure that we are often denied when they're overcooked, but they get it right here. Their spicy Italian sausage and perfectly cooked vegetables make this plate hard to beat.

It wouldn't be brunch without avocado toast (RMB50), and this zesty version comes with two eggs and is one of the cheapest in town. For a change of pace, try the salmon toast (RMB55) whereby a spread of herb-flecked mascarpone is topped by ribbons of cured salmon, sliced cucumber and a poached egg.

From light and airy batter to the crisp sugar coating on the fruit, the caramelized banana waffle (RMB55) with Nutella hits all the right notes. 2/3

The Vibe

In contrast to the dark and moody atmosphere of its predecessor, Alimentari & Degusteria is pure sunshine. Given their location, they are sure to attract the expat masses in need of Italian groceries, wine, snacks, brunch and more. Luckily, their prices are affordable and frequent visits won't break the bank. 1.5/2

Total Verdict: 3.5/5

Price: RMB50-100 per person

Who's going: every expat in the Jing'an vicinity

Good for: coffee, all-day brunch, afternoon drinks and more

JADE ON 36

The Epitome of Approachable Luxury

The arrival of Jade on 36's newest seasonal menus brings a burst of fresh energy to the critically-acclaimed restaurant.

Consulting Chef Oliver PISTRA and Chef de Cuisine Taylan Yucel invite diners to appreciate fine culinary art enhanced by iconic views and signature Shangri-La hospitality. Seasonal ingredients are brought together in experimental and elaborate ways to create perfect combinations and contrasts of texture and flavor.

Case in point is the Pâté en Croûte, consisting of moist chicken breast, duck gizzard and foie gras, speckled with pistachios cooked to perfection between walls of flaky pastry. Each bite is brightened by an airy gin and sour cream emulsion redolent with juniper.

Equally impressive are the Escargot Cromesquis on top of a creamy herb sauce with soft Boursin cheese and a chunky late-summer tomato concassée. The Green Crab & Scampi is an elegant take on a homey classic. Here a crab shell is lined with chawanmushi crab royale, tenderly braised rhubarb, succulent pickleweed and a masterful Americaine sauce.

For those with heartier appetites, venison loin surrounded by celeriac purée, remoulade, blackberry gel and beetroot with softly peppered Sarawak poivrade sauce is a satisfying main course.

The Apple's Surprise is a picture perfect finale to the parade of artfully plated delights. A green-hued white chocolate apple contains granny smith mousse, marmalade and fruit compote with toffee caramel. A scoop of apple brandy Calvados ice cream is an ideal accompaniment.

At the improved Jade on 36, classic flavors are modernized by a talented team for a playfully opulent meal. Single and sharing tastings are available in addition to a la carte options. From romantic dinners to gatherings with friends, Jade on 36 has everything you need.

STRAIGHT NO CHASER

The big industry news this month comes courtesy of Shingo Gokan (Speak Low, Sober Company) and Steve Schneider (Employees Only, The Strangers Club), who told DRiNK Magazine that they are opening a 1980s futurism-themed bar called the Odd Couple in Xintiandi later this year.

Over in Jing'an, the folks behind Barbarian (as well as Bites & Brews and Hot Chick) are taking over Le Café de Stagiaires' former Wuding Lu outpost and replacing it with Mad Lab. While still a work in progress, we hear they are hopping on the draft cocktail bandwagon to keep the thirsty masses hydrated with little fuss.

Although Elevator announced the date of their closing party back in August, the September 18 shindig ended up being a celebration of a three-month lease extension. They will continue looking for a new space in the meantime.

Arkham at Found 158 has recently opened a bat cave-like lounge named Gallium. Whether you enter through the main space or the neon-lit, mirrored hallway, the space stands in stark contrast to its primary counterpart. The swanky new cocktail menu contains some gems, including refreshing takes on a gimlet and spicy Sichuan mules.

Finally, if you didn't get a chance to check out RATIO's pop-up robot bar in Shanghai's K11 mall this summer, you can visit the newly-opened permanent location in People's Square Raffles City.

BARTENDER BLOOPERS

Shanghai Cocktail Slingers Most Shameful Moments

By Logan R. Brouse

We've all had bad days at work, from messed up sales to missed deadlines, but when it comes to the service industry, our worst moments happen in public. This month I am sharing column space with some of my delinquent cocktail slinging friends for a bloopers reel of drinks and debauchery.

The Single Guy

One night in the early 2000's, I was working at my first nightclub bartending job. The music is loud when a man walks up and asked for a "single guy." I replied, "I'm flattered but that's not my thing. You can find a bunch of single guys all over the place here and happy hunting." He said, "No, I want a single guy." Now flummoxed with a buildup of drink orders, I apologize for my chiseled good looks, runway-ready body and smoky come-hither eyes and said, "Again, thank you, but I'm not the droid you're looking for." He let out an exasperated sigh and explained a 'single guy' is a cosmopolitan made with tequila instead of vodka. My face turned as pink as the drink I made for him.

An Unfair Shake

One of my favorite stories comes from my good friend and world-traveling drinking buddy, Daniel "The Man" An (owner of Atelier by Taste Buds, Antique and Shrine). When he worked at a renowned hotel bar in the city, they used fresh tomato juice in the Bloody Mary recipe, and too many bubbles in the juice means that it has been sitting there for a while. One time, he shook a bottle without noticing the carbonation, and it went off like a bomb. "Tomato juice exploded all over my white shirt and covered customers' faces like blood," he says.

The Case of the Missing Ingredient

A while back, one of the coolest bartenders around (hint: his name rhymes with Freddie Bang) was competing in the Chivas Masters Cocktail Competition. He presented a cocktail with a great story and excellent technique. It was an all-around-winner except it was missing teeny, tiny ingredient that the judges were really looking for – Chivas.

The Great Pants Switch

The next story comes from the That's Shanghai 2018 Mixologist of the Year, Geo Valdivieso. He recalls a New Year's Eve where he allowed himself to get particularly loose. The party was so crazy his boss knocked over a pyramid of champagne glasses, and the police kept stopping by. At 8am, he goes to change out of his uniform and realizes someone took his pants, leaving him with a pair of yoga pants with no keys or money. He borrowed some money from the manager – who was still dealing with the cops – and had to break into his house by jumping through a 14th-floor window before realizing he had to be back to do inventory four hours later. He says that the memory still hurts.

New Kid on the Block

One of Shanghai's newest bartenders, Josh Freund recalls his first night at newly-opened tequila bar and taqueria. Not just new to the bar, but serving drinks in general, he (and his liver) had no idea what to expect. As his evil beady-eyed boss looked on, his hands shook while cutting limes, he also dropped an entire tray of glasses on the floor and forgot ingredients (and their proportions). At the same time his friends shouted insults and took video of the catastrophe. Still, he calls it one of the best experiences ever.

Logan R. Brouse, proprietor and mixologist of Logan's Punch and Tacolicious has run bars and clubs in Shanghai for over eight years. In between hangovers, he puts pen to paper to record his pontifications on the drink industry.

BAR ALCOCASE

Reenvisioned Retro and Booze-Forward Favorites

By Cristina Ng

You might be asking yourself what exactly an 'alco-case' is. While we first thought it was a portmanteau of 'alcohol and nutcase' (aka us after free-flow anything), it actually stands for 'alcohol and showcase.' That's more fitting as Bar Alcocase is grandly designed in a retro-luxe style ideal for enjoying a few well-made cocktails.

Located right next to Mosso on Changle Lu, Bar Alcocase is the new venture from the group behind blink-and-you-missed-it Japanese bar, Madara. Former Union Trading Company bartenders Lucky Huang and Leo Wei are here to design the cocktail program and manage the bar.

Behind a brick and glass entrance, lies a cozy bar area decked out in dark woods and jewel-toned velveteen. If you look closely at the golden candelabra wall sconces, you'll see a trail of matching insects 'walking' on the walls. The attention to detail and whimsical approach to design extends to the drink list.

Some of the more unique offerings are Six Pence Hot Pot and A Dame to Kill For (both RMB95). The latter sees a clash of rye (or bourbon), lemon, house-made rosemary and raisin syrup, red port and Calpis competing for the limelight, while sweeter flavors win out. In contrast, the former merges gin, Calvados, Sichuan pepper, white wine and thyme in perfect harmony.

Recette du Chef (RMB95) is a booze-forward rum number with lemongrass, mango jam, basil, chili tincture, sherry, and lime. This otherwise delicious drink has a viscosity that would benefit from being served on ice.

You can't go wrong with a Hemingway Daiquiri (RMB95), French 75 (RMB90) or anything else from the classics lineup as the bar staff is made up of consummate experts.

The only real complaint we have is a playlist filled with poppy Christian hip-hop. While we appreciate the effort to keep things upbeat, they need to get someone in to consult on the music. Prices might be a little steep, but given the quality of the ingredients and the number of house-made components, we're willing to look past that. All in all, we see ourselves returning to work our way through a few more cocktails.

CLASSICAL CHINESE POETRY AND PROSE

An Accomplished Writer on the Art of Translation

Written by Xu Yuanchong

About the Author:

Born in Nanchang, Jiangxi in 1921, Xu Yuanchong graduated from the Southwest Associated University and Université de Paris and worked as a professor of literary translation at Peking University. During his decades-long career, Xu has published On Chinese Verse in English Rhyme and Vanished Springs, which featured a preface by Nobel Prize winner for physics, C. N. Yang. In addition to Songs of the Immortals published by Penguin Books, he has translated many Chinese literary classics into English or French. Some of his most notable work include Book of Poetry, Elegies of the South, 300 Tang Poems, 300 Song Lyrics, Selected Poems of Li Bai, Poems and Lyrics of Su Dongpo, Romance of Western Bower and The Selected Poems of Mao Zedong. He has also translated some world literary classics, such as Gustave Flaubert's Madame Bovary into Chinese. Prof. Xu received the Lifetime Achievement Award in Translation conferred by the Translators Association of China (TAC) in 2010.

About the Book:

More than 2,000 years ago, Chinese poets wrote the beautiful works The Book of Songs and The Songs of Chu. Later, they created more beautiful poems during the Tang and Song dynasties. Classic works like The Analects of Confucius and Lao Zi are not only symbols for traditional values and ideology, they're also an important bridge between the rest of the world and China.

Horoscopes

Finally, a horoscope that understands your life in Shanghai.

By Dominic Ngai

Libra
9.24-10.23

After all the glutinous mooncakes you ate last month, it's finally time to hit the gym again. Make sure to wear red workout gear for good luck.

Scorpio
10.24-11.22

Halloween falls right in the middle of your sign, which is the only time of year in which you can unleash your inner darkness and no one would bat an eye. Don't eat too much candy though - a sugar rush will make you do something truly embarrassing and it'll go viral.

Sagittarius
11.23-12.21

Attending multiple farewell parties this month will lead you to start thinking about your own China exit but all those fancy hotel free flow champagne brunches are still calling your name. Fine, maybe another year...

Capricorn
12.22-1.20

Refuse all group chat invitations this month. For groups you're already in, don't participate in any conversations unless they're directed at you. If you must reply, only respond in five words or less. Don't ask why.

Aquarius
1.21-2.19

There will be more than a few hiccups with your Didi rides this month, so we recommend sticking with the metro. Avoid any south-facing station exits, and remember to only take the escalators.

Pisces
2.20-3.20

Overspending on your Golden Week trip means you'll have to make some major cutbacks. Hunt for those cheap Meituan deals, or just cook your own food for once, you lazy fish.

Aries
3.21-4.20

A friendly face will confront you about your questionable WeChat sticker choices this month - don't fight it. Listen to them to avoid further damage to your reputation and invest your energy elsewhere.

Taurus
4.21-5.21

Your regular breakfast jianbing place is closed for good so it's time to try something new. It's a huge challenge for you since you're a creature of habit, but those 7-Eleven baozi aren't that bad. Just get the ones with vegetarian fillings and skip the mystery meat. Yum!

Gemini
5.22-6.21

Alipay will fail you when you need it most this month, so have some backup cash in your wallet at all times. Or just ask your hot Tinder date to pay for your pricey drink at Speak Low and expect to never see them again. Your call.

Cancer
6.22-7.22

Feeling a little crabby, Crabby? You should totally do a lavish staycation with your BFF using that hotel voucher you won a while back. Double check the expiry date before you go though - you definitely can't afford it.

Leo
7.23-8.23

A stranger will approach you on the metro, introduce himself in Chinese as a modeling agent and ask for your WeChat. Whatever you do, don't give it out. Just pretend to be a tourist and act confused. That always works.

Virgo
8.24-9.23

You promised your partner that you'd try to become less controlling, but your regular Starbucks order is still a 'venti, non-fat, extra hot, no foam, vanilla latte.' That's fine. Just don't yell at the barista if they mess up your drink again, OK?
